Goodwood's Passion for Aviation

The Goodwood Aerodrome is part of the Goodwood Estate, home to the Dukes of Richmond since 1697, and is an important part of its history. Over 75 years ago, Freddie March, the future 9th Duke of Richmond, received his Aviator's Certificate from the Royal Aero Club. Over the next decade, he designed countless aircraft many of which were built and flown from Goodwood. During the Second World War, Goodwood, then known as RAF Westhampnett, played a crucial role in defending the nation. Legendary fighter pilot Douglas Bader took off on many of his sorties from here.

Largely unchanged since those times, Goodwood still welcomes back iconic wartime aircraft for static and stunning aerial displays at various events including the Goodwood Revival each September. The Goodwood Flying School has been training pilots for over 40 years and is as active today as it has ever been. Goodwood also offers extensive hangarage, plus its own on-site Aircraft Maintenance division.

The Goodwood Aero Club offers an opportunity to indulge your passion for aviation and flying; to be part of Goodwood's rich aviation history and experience the exciting possibilities of air travel thanks to our exclusive benefits. Relive heroic wartime missions with unique access to the warbirds and their pilots at the Goodwood Revival, plus close-quarter inspection of a rare selection of pre-1966 aircraft in the Freddie March 'Spirit of Aviation'; discover the romance of flying with exclusive pleasure flights in vintage aircraft, or take off on aerial adventures throughout Europe. As well as the social events that the Club offers, we are also very proud to offer our new fleet of five Cessna 172 SP Skyhawk training aircraft, acquired during 2009 and 2010. These state-of-the-art machines provide you with the opportunity to train in, or hire, one of the most advanced fleets in Europe. The Club also offers a series of talks on subjects such as aircraft engineering or a celebrated aviation expert's achievements. Come and enjoy the many benefits of the Goodwood Aero Club Membership.

We look forward to welcoming you.
